NORTHFIELD, MASS., FRIDAY DEC. 13, 1929

PRICE FIVE CENTS

TENTATIVE TERCENTENARY PROGRAM

At the last meeting of the Tercentenary celebration town committee further progress was made in plans for the town program for next July. Certain townspeople were nominated to act as chairmen of sub-committees with power to elect their own committees. As soon as acceptances are received, their names will be made public.

The question of a pageant was laid on the table for the present. One's first impulse is to vote yes for a pageant. Northfield is richer in Indian history than any town in America.

The 250th anniversary pageant seven years ago was such a success that many would like to see a bigger and better pageant next July. However, those citizens who put over that pageant advise against another because of the enormous labor and expense involved. Moreover, the State will be full of pageants next year. The selectmen have no authority to pledge the town even for the preliminary expenses, which would be heavy. For these and other reasons, the committee has held up the pageant.

At present, the program stands as follows, subject, of course, to improvement and indorsement of the next town meeting.

Tuesday evening, July 29, 1930, Old Flocks concert. The use of the Auditorium has been asked for, Chairman, Mrs. A. P. Pitt. Committee members who have already agreed to serve: Joseph W. Field, Dr. Allen Wright, Lewis Wood, Miss Marion Webster, Mrs. George Pefferle, Miss Ethel Sheldon, Mrs. Elliott Spear, Mrs. George T. Thompson. Prof. Lawrence may be able to serve as chorister. An admission fee will be charged to cover expenses, but it is proposed that townspeople who come in costume shall be admitted free to the choir lot.

This committee had its first meeting last Tuesday evening, when the chorus and special music, decorations and various plans were discussed. Wednesday, July 30, 10 to 5 o'clock—Visitation of colonial homes. A score of old homes will be opened to the public by courtesy of the owners, to exhibit wall paper and old paneling and other structural features, also antique and historical objects of all kinds. The householders and their helpers will be in costume. Tickets of general admission will be on sale to the public, the proceeds to be used for general expenses.

Mrs. Thomas A. Dollard is chairman of the sub-committee that has this project in hand.

Wednesday evening, July 30, 1930—A grand costume old folks' dance will be held in the Town hall. Perhaps an old-time fiddlers' orchestra will be engaged for the music. Old-fashioned square dances will be featured.

Thursday, July 31, 1930, 10 to 5 o'clock—No anniversary celebration of this type is complete without an old home and family reunion day. As at present contemplated the items on the old home day program will include a historical parade with floats, etc., in the forenoon, a picnic lunch in the grounds west of the high school, followed by an open-air meeting, when some prominent speaker might deliver an address on the constitutional aspect of the tercentenary, namely, the establishment of constitutional government on the soil of America by the granting of a royal charter to Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Thursday evening, July 31, 1930—A thanksgiving service in the auditorium, when another prominent speaker might be engaged to explain the religious aspects of the colonization of Massachusetts. For that great episode in the history of our State and Nation is notable, not alone for its political character, but also for its definite Christian stamp.

In addition to the foregoing features, there will be a committee headed by Joseph R. Colton on the construction of a log cabin and stretch of stockade, a miniature edition of the original settlement, marking of historic sites, etc. O. L. Leach and Donald Finch have already consented to serve on this committee.

A junior tercentenary committee, whose object shall be to interest and instruct the young people of the town in the significance of the celebration, by means of reading, plays, visitation of historic sites, etc., is in charge of Miss Mary Dalton.

A loan exhibition of antique and historical articles will be open to the public in Dickinson hall, in care of a committee of which Mrs. Joseph Field is chairman.

Miss Priscilla Colton is chairman of a committee to arrange for hiking and auto trips to points of historic and scenic interest in this vicinity, and to enroll a group of guides who shall be instructed in their job and paid at so much per hour.

A committee on publicity and speakers' bureau is in charge of A. P. Pitt for the present. Speakers will be supplied on request for any meetings of groups or organizations in this town and elsewhere.

It looks as if nearly everyone in town will be enrolled in some capacity in making the tercentenary celebration the biggest thing that Northfield has ever done. Our two main assets as a town are our historic facts and traditions and our scenic beauty. This Northfield definitely on the map in the celebration affords opportunity to put eyes of the whole nation.

S. S. Faculty Meeting

The teachers and officers of the North Church Sunday School met for their usual monthly faculty meeting last Monday evening in the church. There were 31 present. Among the business items transacted, after short devotions, they voted $25 for the State Sunday school organization; also to make the week of Jan. 5 a time for the visitation of scholars in their homes by the teachers. Mr. Fry has consented to lead the school orchestra and will work up music for the Christmas program.

The collection taken last Sunday for the community Christmas tree amounted to $6.91, with later additions. The Christmas program committee, consisting of S. E. Walker, Mrs. Frank Patton and Mrs. Philip Porter, submitted a program which met with the hearty endorsement of the faculty. There will be a special silver offering on behalf of the needy of this town at the usual Sunday school session, Dec. 22, with the teaching of the Christmas lesson. The same afternoon, from 4 to 5 o'clock, a vesper service will be held, when the first half will be in charge of the junior department, Mrs. Frank Montague, superintendent, and the second half in charge of the seniors. A short episode entitled "A Christmas Miracle" will be given, with carol singing and other features.

Monday evening, Dec. 23, the Christmas tree party will be held. The juniors will be entertained at supper at 5:30 by the Berean class ladies, after which there will be Christmas movies and Santa Claus and gifts for all the scholars and—come and see what else. All these gatherings are free. The next faculty meeting will be held Monday evening, Jan. 13, when Mrs. Edwin B. Robinson of Holyoke will give an address.

A group of Connecticut Valley College students held a conference last week at the Northfield, the purpose being to acquire an intelligent appraisal of foreign missions in their many lines of work. A number of excellent speakers were present, among whom were Mrs. Lawrence Thurston, former president of Gilling College of Nantucket, Ohio; Frank Price, also of Nantucket; Dr. Chiang of the Congressional Library at Washington, and his brother, Peter Chiang of Boston University; Dr. Kenneth Labourette, a professor of missions at Yale.

Alonzo S. Willey

Alonzo Seth Willey, 78 years of age, died at the home of his son, Bert Willey, at the John Sutherland house on Winchester street, Saturday, Dec. 7. He was born in Guilford, Vt., the son of Seth and Betsey Clark Willey, and spent most of his life in that town as a farmer. He married Caroline Clark of Guilford. For a few years they lived at the Wilder farm in Brattleboro, Vt., where Mrs. Willey died 17 years ago, the day of her husband's funeral. Mr. Willey made his home the past six years with his son, Bert Willey and family here and has been in failing health for many years. Besides his son, he leaves a daughter, Mrs. Walter Barrows; two grandsons, Roy Barrows and Brainerd Willey; and a great-grandson, Richard Barrows, all of East Northfield. The funeral was held Monday at his late home, Rev. E. E. Jones officiating. Interment was at Guilford, Vt.

Mothers' Society

The Mothers' Society of Northfield held its annual Christmas meeting Wednesday at the Homestead, Mrs. William R. Moody as hostess. After the transaction of items of business, Mrs. Samuel E. Walker presented a paper on "Old Testament Allusions to the Second Coming of Christ" and closed with the Christmas story of His birth. Several Christmas carols were sung by Mrs. Moody, Mrs. F. W. Pattison, who presided, read Temple Baily's story, "The Star and the Well." Seven questions on parenthood were answered by seven mothers who were present. The latter part of the afternoon was spent socially. During the meeting the children of the mothers who attended were entertained by Mrs. W. E. Webber at her home on Highland avenue. The next meeting will be held jointly with other women's organizations in January.

Y. P. B. Meeting

The Y. P. B. held its monthly social and business meeting in Grange hall Wednesday evening. After the transaction of business, games and dancing were enjoyed by the 37 members who were present, including six members who were received that evening. The next meeting will be held Jan. 8 and will include a sleigh ride with refreshments.

CHRISTMAS WONDER

by PATIENCE EDEN

If there is no wonder in Christmas, then there is no Christmas! Wonder is another name for the holiest, brightest, merriest, most sacred season of the year.

Wonder that fills the heart as light and music filled the sky that cold frosty night of the first Christmas, when angels hovered over the fields beyond Bethlehem, and gave the humble shepherds assurance of good cheer.

Wonder which the Wise Men felt as they silently followed the star to the door of the place where Mary had laid her child.

Wonder of the dumb beasts which stood in the stable of the inn.

The sweet wonder of Mary herself as she bent soft eyes on the beautiful babe, born in poverty and heir to all the ages.

Wonder of all, high and low, who found their way to the manger, bringing gifts and adoration.

And in our time, wonder of the world we live in.

Wonder and gratitude for the loyalty of friends and the unquenchable courage of hearts that bear all things with fortitude.

Wonder and gratitude for our own opportunities and responsibilities, which open up larger vistas for a fuller life.

Wonder—Christmas wonder which includes the miracle of The Christ Child nearly two thousand years ago, and now!

Merry Christmas!

Local Odd Bits o' News

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Vorce of Somerville had an 8-lb. son born, Dec. 12.

Mrs. Mary Bardwell has closed her home on Main street and will spend the winter in Boston.

Mr. Winter and Elmer Perkins are at their cottage at Northfield Farms, and the former secured a doe.

Mrs. M. E. Vorce of this town is staying at her son's home in Somerville, where she will remain for a month.

President Elliott Spear is a busy man. This week he is in New York after Philadelphia in the interest of the Northfield Schools.

Mrs. Fred Wells spent Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in Worcester attending sessions of the State Grange convention.

Miss Fanny Hatch returned from Brattleboro hospital last week and is recovering from her illness at the Betsy Moody cottage.

Mrs. N. P. Wood is still improving but probably will not be able to go to California, as she has planned, until after Christmas.

Mrs. E. M. Morgan reviewed the first chapter of the book by Earl Goodwin, "What is Prohibition," which is the study book of the W. C. T. U. for the year. There were 14 present.

Read Phil Porter's letter in another column. Mr. Porter can hit the nail on the head as well as anyone, and what he says about the $3,000,000 drive not only hits it but drives it in.

Mrs. Harriet Broad of Brookline, president of the Northfield Seminary Alumni Association, of which Miss Hatch is secretary, has been here several days caring for the work of the association which needed immediate attention. Mrs. Mary Mead, who has worked in the Alumni office, has returned for the emergency.

The annual game, supper and ladies' night of the Northfield Brotherhood is set for next Monday evening at 6:30 in the Congregational church. The Hon. John W. Haigis will be the speaker.

Harry Gates, born in Northfield and a resident here until about 25 years ago, when he moved to Orange, has just been elected president of the Orange Savings Bank, succeeding A. J. Fisher, deceased.

Raymond Sauter and family of Bradstreet, Mass., after an absence from Northfield of eight years, have returned and are now well established in their home, the old historic Minot house on Main street.

Northfield Grange had a very interesting talk at its meeting Tuesday evening by J. R. Colton, who spoke on the Indian traces left in Northfield and vicinity by the many Indians who lived here before the coming of the white settlers. Mr. Colton and his daughter, Miss Priscilla, have been making extensive investigations over hills and valleys, and he has an intensely interesting story. They have found on the west side of the river many granaries, defense trenches and a well-defined trail leading from the stump of King Philip's tree to the river. On the east side of the Connecticut they have found the location of Indian workshops, council fires, fortifications and defense trenches. They have followed the old Indian trail from Northfield over Mt. Crags to Athol and Brookfield. Much more of interest they have discovered. This town was formerly an Indian rendezvous. At one time 5,000 Indians lived here and the first settlers fed the land with cultivation and much of the area which had been cleared by the Indians for cultivation. Mr. Colton showed some Indian relics which they had secured in their researches.

Mrs. Carl Mason, in addition to her other activities, has revealed her talent for catering. She provided and served the refreshments at Mrs. A. P. Pitt's when the latter entertained 40 teachers and officers of the Congregational Sunday school and a week later when Mrs. Pitt's guests were the members of the senior class of the high school.

Mrs. N. Fay Smith returned last week after eleven weeks as the guest of Mrs. William H. Clarke, spending time at Lake Winnepesaukee, N. H., at Charleston, S. C., and Brooklyn, N. Y. She plans to stay home for the present.

The Misses Blake, four sisters, who have been guests at the Northfield since July 15, have gone to Hartford, Conn., for the winter.

Deer hunters have had excellent weather conditions for their success and many have been fortunate enough to bring home the game. One of the finest specimens was a 10-point buck secured by Leslie McGarrett of Springfield, who hunted with his brother-in-law, Max Huber. Paul Jordan killed a spike buck of 200 pounds; H. A. Reed and sons, a doe; Fred James, a doe; Robert Abbott, a doe; E. M. Morgan, a buck.

The W. C. T. U. met at the Young People's room at the Congregational church Monday afternoon for a business session, mainly with Mrs. L. R. Alexander presiding. This will be the last meeting of the union this year. Mrs. Alexander read a letter from this historical society asking the union to co-operate with the tercentenary town committee in the plans for celebration of this event next July. A similar letter has been sent to the 31 organizations of the town to secure unanimous co-operation.

Rev. F. W. Pattison spoke before the Millers Falls Brotherhood at the Congregational church of that town Tuesday evening, on his summer of 1927 up the Peace River in the Canadian northwest. Accompanying were Mr. Pallam, Mr. Thompson, Hermon White and Roy Flanders. They had a fine evening, with the 100 members of the Millers Falls Brotherhood and were served a luncheon after the program. Howard Allen of Somerville spent the week end with his aunt, Miss Carrie L. Mason, and Miss M. J. Hills.

SOME RECENT LIBRARY IMPROVEMENTS

At a recent meeting of the library trustees, it was voted to repair the radiator valves in the upstairs rooms, which had become so rusty that they had practically ceased to function. They are now in good condition and it will not be difficult to heat the hall and rooms which are to be used for the exhibits of the American Legion and the Historical society. The ceiling lights have been lowered, giving a far better illumination of the assembly hall. A slight change in the position of exhibition cases, antiques and pictures will add to the attractiveness of the rooms, both upstairs and down.

Northfield takes a worthy pride in Dickinson library. The beauty of the structure is in keeping with the beauty of our town—which is praise sufficient. In addition to the 8,000 books from which our people may select their reading, there is in the library building many documents, old paintings, engravings, etc., of historic value, and many old implements, household utensils and other articles of interest. Miss Ina Merriman, who succeeded Miss Randall as librarian, is deeply interested in her work and is ambitious for an increased patronage on the part of the people, as well as a better service in meeting their wants. It is the aim of the trustees to give as good value to the library as the appropriation for its support will permit.

The following new books have recently been purchased: Autobiography of Calvin Coolidge; Seven Iron Men, De Kruijff; Prince of Wales, Townsend; Mid Stream, Helen Keller; Audacious Audubon, Muschamp; New Worlds to Conquer, Halliburton; Inside of Prohibition, Willebrandt; Fighting Caravans, Zane Grey; Splendor of God, Morrow; A Lantern in Her Hand, Aldrich; All Quiet on the Western Front, Remarque; White Oak of Jalna, De la Roche; The Prodigal Girl, Hill; The Merimales, McCutcheon; Swift Water, Loring; An Interrupted Night, Fanny; Kidnapped by Air, Wallace; Penrod Jasher, Tarkington; Best Animal Stories I Know, Minot; Three Rookies at Morton, White; Boy Scouts on the Green Mountain Trail, Eaton.

The Fortnightly

At the Fortnightly meeting held last Friday, Mrs. C. C. Stockbridge gave a comprehensive history of the Northfield library from its beginning in 1813, when Thomas Powers, a lawyer of Boston, laid its foundation by getting together 70 books owned by 34 citizens, who also paid $1 a share to found a library association.

In 1846 the number of books had increased to 600, at the price per share in the library of $15. Through the influence of L. T. Webster, a room in the Town hall was secured for a library and Miss Mary Stratton was the first librarian, $60 being paid the librarian for her work, which included janitor work. Mrs. C. C. Stockbridge had this position the last six years in the Town hall. In 1896 Elijah Dickinson, a native of Northfield, was influenced by Charles H. Green to give the town our present beautiful library. Mr. Green gave the land. The library was dedicated in 1898 and Mrs. Stockbridge was librarian for eight years. The stone for the building was secured from Northfield granite quarry.

Miss Ina Merriman, our librarian, followed Mrs. Stockbridge by giving some facts about her work. She said that the average circulation of books is 1234 per month. There were problems as well as encouragements and increasing opportunities for the library to widen its services.

Miss Virginia Smith reviewed some of the outstanding books of the year, notably The Splendor of God, by Mrs. Morrow; The Biography of Franklin, by Bernard Fay; Midstream, by Helen Keller; White Oaks of Jalna, by Mazo de la Roche; Grandfather Brown's Hundred Years; A Preface to Morals, and the life of the Prince of Wales. Two timely and pleasing songs were rendered by Miss Marion Webster, "O Holy Night" and "Christmas Eve."

Richards—Bristol

The marriage is announced of Mrs. Flora E. Bristol of 9 Pine street, Springfield, Mass., to Mr. Elmer J. Richards of Hartford, Conn., on Wednesday, Dec. 4, at Springfield, the Rev. Neil McPherson of the Old First Church officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Richards will spend the winter in St. Petersburg, Fla., and on their return will make their home in Springfield.

Northfield has a strong claim upon Mrs. Richards, whose home was here for many years. A host of friends felicitate her and her husband on their marriage and wish them all sorts of success and happiness.

Mt. Hermon Xmas Service

A Christmas service will be given in the Chapel at Mt. Hermon Sunday evening at 7:15. The program will include Christmas carols, anthems and instrumental numbers. A brass choir will render carols from the chapel tower for ten minutes before the service begins in the chapel. The public is cordially invited.

Mentally Upset

Paul Eorvakowski, evidently considerably unbalanced, was found wandering about on South Main street at 3 a. m., Thursday, clad in his pajamas and a "wind breaker," and barefooted, despite the zero weather. With the assistance of Carl Mason, Constable Haskell took him to his home on East street for medical attention.

Mrs. C. P. Buffum, one of the directors of the flower mission department of the W. C. T. U., sent four sacks of hemlock boughs to the Flower Mission of Boston a few weeks ago, to be used in trimming 700 baskets full of Thanksgiving good things for the sick and "shut-ins." She plans to send another consignment for Christmas.

Franklin County Farmer

Raising 415 bushels of potatoes on a measured acre of land gives Lewis C. Munn of Gill, Franklin County, first place in the 1929 Massachusetts potato raising contest, conducted by the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and automatically makes him president of the 300-Bushel Potato Club for the coming year.

Second place in this select club of potato growers goes to C. G. Barnes of Bedford, Middlesex County, who produced 353 bushels per acre. The next four places all went to Western Massachusetts growers. Alexander Jurgilewicz, also of Gill, was third, with a yield of 349 bushels; William D. Pierson, Charlemont, Franklin County, was fourth, with a yield of 344 bushels; and A. D. Morey, Cummington, Hampshire County, was fifth with a yield of 336 bushels per acre.

"Miss Frances Munn deserves equal credit with her father in accomplishing these results," says R. W. Donaldson, agronomy specialist for M. A. C., who was in charge of the contest. Last year father and daughter were second highest in the records of the 300-Bushel Potato Club. Mr. Barnes and Mr. Jurgilewicz have also won places in previous years in the 300-Bushel Potato Club of Massachusetts.

The Garden Theatre

Many Northfield people have the habit of attending the Garden theatre in Greenfield. Next week a Fox movietone musical romance will be the attraction, with nine distinctive song hits. It is based on the operetta by Oscar Straus. Norma Terris, J. Harold Murray, Walter Cartlett, Irene Palasty have stellar roles, and not second in importance to the principals are the ensembles, composed of a singing chorus of 100 and a dancing group of 60, which were staged by Edward Royce.

Community Christmas Tree

The community Christmas tree will be put into position and lighted, Saturday, Dec. 14, near the Belcher fountain on Main street. Mr. Roy Hatch of Mount Hermon is chairman of the committee and Messrs. George Carr and Albert Holton have charge of the placing and decoration of the tree. They will be assisted by local merchants. Philip Porter as chorister and Joseph W. Field, as cornetist, will lead the singing Christmas Eve, beginning at 6:30. Santa Claus will appear at 7 o'clock, and will have something in his pack for every child in school up to the high school, and for others from three years up to school age.

Tickets have been distributed in the schools to all children up to and including the 8th grade. All other children must be accompanied by parents or by an older brother or sister. School children should bring their tickets when they come Christmas eve.

Thoughts For the Serious

Silence is the true friend who never betrays.—Confucius.

Whether you be man or woman, you will never do anything in this world without courage. It is the greatest quality of the mind next to honor.—James L. Allen.

A great city, whose image dwells on the memory of man, is the type of some great idea. Rome represents conquest, faith hovers over Jerusalem and Athens embodies pre-eminent quality of the antique world art.—Disraeli.

The next meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held Monday evening, Jan. 6, in Alexander hall, with Mrs. Joseph W. Fields in charge of the program. The topic will be Health, and Dr. Carl L. Schrader, state supervisor of physical education, will be the speaker. Any one interested in the work of the association or in one of the greatest physical projects of today, the physical welfare of our children, is cordially invited to be present. Refreshments will be served.

Northfield, Mass., December 10th, 1929
The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Northfield National Bank 13172, of Northfield, Massachusetts, will be held at its banking room Tuesday, January 14th, 1930, at 11 o'clock, a. m., to receive the president's report, to elect directors for the ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may lawfully come before the meeting.

Merwin D. Birdsall, Cashier.

Decorated Metal Boxes

If the most favored Christmas gift were given a special place of honor on a prominent table, there is little doubt that the decorated metal boxes which are used so much this year would have the coveted position. To be sure, the box and the contents complement each other, for the delicious fruit cake, plum pudding, candy or glazed nuts which occupy the festive container are always welcome. But long after the contents have disappeared the box remains to act as a decorative and handy table ornament.

For instance, a large, round box, which is called Clairvoyant and which shows an Egyptian woman consulting a crystal, makes an excellent sewing box to contain the needles and thread and pins and scissors that every woman likes to keep in a handy place.

Another box which is called Enthusiasm would find itself at home in the most extreme of modern homes. Its background is black and the top is made up of concentric, jagged circles showing the hues of the spectrum.

Round or Oblong

For the person with more conservative tastes there are more conventional boxes. One shows a pastoral scene in sepia tones. A brighter, but most attractive, design is called Tudor; in the center is a group of golden fruits surrounded by an intricate golden design on a background of rich scarlet.

Some of these gay tin boxes are oblong, instead of round, and have their lids hinged on. Candy is the usual occupant of this type of container. When empty it is a little more handy and just as decorative as the round ones.*

JOINING HANDS WITH SANTA CLAUS

WHEN you and your family sit down before your Christmas dinner Santa Claus won't be there literally, but let us hope that he will be there in spirit, at least, for it is the Santa Claus sentiment which makes Christmas one of our most joyous holidays.

Hilarious Favors

Of course, the table is set with your most precious linen, silver and china, and, for the children's sake, there should be favors at every place. These may be silly little trifles from the ten-cent store which hit off some idiosyncrasy of the person to whom they belong. For instance, the boy who has been teasing for skis could find a miniature set at his place, as well as the real pair under the Christmas tree. The girl who is such a traveler could receive a toy suitcase, and the golf enthusiast a tiny golf club. Sometimes these favors are used instead of place cards, their nature indicating where each is to sit. And it is fun if a rule is made that anyone who makes a mistake in selecting his seat has to pay a forfeit.

A simple but most effective table decoration is made by laying a holly wreath on the table and arranging four candles around it. But, after all, the dinner's the thing which holds the greatest interest, so here is a menu—one which proclaims that it is up-to-date and yet does justice to the well-known Christmas standbys:

Oyster and Ripe Olive Cocktail
Roast Goose—Chestnut Stuffing
Mashed Potatoes
Giblet Gravy
Sweet Potatoes and Pineapple
Spinach au Gratin
Waldorf Salad
Steamed Fig Pudding and Apricot
Hard Sauce
Mints
Coffee
Stuffed Dates

Here are the recipes for the dishes in this dinner which are not already familiar to everyone. The recipes are prepared for eight people.

Some Up-to-Date Recipes

Oyster and Ripe Olive Cocktail: Arrange two dozen small canned oysters in cocktail glasses. Add one-fourth cup of minced ripe olives. Pour the following sauce over the cocktail, and serve ice cold. To make the sauce, mix together thoroughly one tablespoon horseradish, one-half teaspoon Tabasco sauce, one tablespoon vinegar, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, two tablespoons lemon juice, one tablespoon tomato catsup and one-half teaspoon salt.

Sweet Potatoes and Pineapple: Put eight large, thick slices of boiled or canned sweet potatoes in a single layer in a large, well-buttered skillet, and spread two-thirds cup of drained, crushed pineapple over them. Make a syrup of four tablespoons butter, one-half cup brown sugar, and one-half cup pineapple syrup. Pour over the vegetable, cover and let cook slowly, basting often with the syrup in the skillet. Uncover at the last to allow the potatoes to brown and the syrup to thicken.

Steamed Fig Pudding: Drain a can of figs and chop them coarsely. Mix and sift one cup of flour with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt, and stir in one cup of bread crumbs and two-thirds cup of chopped suet. Add the figs to this mixture, and moisten with a beaten egg and two-thirds of a cup of milk. Turn into a greased bowl or mold, cover closely, and steam for two hours. Serve hot with Apricot Hard Sauce.

Not Hard to Take

Apricot Hard Sauce: Cream one-third cup of butter with one cup of confectioner's sugar, add one-fourth teaspoon of vanilla extract and two-thirds cup of diced and drained canned apricots. Chill and serve on the pudding. You will find this sauce on the pudding far from hard to make or take.

In case you wish to, a light soup could be served between the cocktail and meat course. A consommé or unthickened tomato soup would be most appropriate. And of course, green olives, celery, pickles and jelly may be served in just as great quantities as you wish.*

OLD MAN WINTER

"Old Man Winter" may do his worst in New England this year, as some prophets predict, but the Boston & Maine railroad is ready to match him with what is probably the most extensive snow fighting equipment ever assembled on a New England railroad.

The Boston & Maine is now ready on a half hour's notice to start 5,500 men out with the most modern assembly of railroad snow fighting apparatus. New equipment, including a new snow-slicer plow and loader, the first of its kind in New England, which operates as well on railways or highways, has been provided.

The Boston & Maine's equipment now includes a battery of five modern snow loaders, 82 locomotives equipped with snow melters, 58 snow plows, 93 snow melting stations, 18 truck plows, five tractors and sweepers, four snow spreaders and 12 switch heaters.

In an hour's time this great force of men and machinery can be sent scurrying over the Boston & Maine's miles of track in New Hampshire, Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts and New York, removing snow in a half dozen different methods almost as fast as "Old Man Winter" can spread it. The newest snow fighting machinery—the Boston & Maine's new snow-slicer plow and loader—chews up snow in an amazing manner. It has two sets of wheels than can be shifted even more rapidly than an automobile tire is changed. One set is of steel with flanges, permitting the apparatus to run on the railroad's rails; the other has standard pneumatic automobile tires. Gasoline is the motive fuel. In front of the plow loader is a set of steel knives that rotate close to the ground and are powerful enough to tear through snow and ice, throwing it backward to a conveyor system that carries it rapidly to the rear of the loader, where a chute takes it off. Tests of the new apparatus, made during the light snow fall of Dec. 2, exceeded the best hopes of the Boston & Maine's snow fighting forces.

The snow loaders do the work that formerly required an army of shovelers. They chew into the banks thrown up by the plows and plowing locomotives so fast that snow disappears into dumping cars at an amazing pace. The loaders are gasoline operated and their tractor wheels move easily against the largest snow piles, as their mechanical "shovels" scoop up the snow and carry it to the dumping cars.

It makes no difference whether the snow starts at midday or at midnight. The hundreds of miles of telephone and telegraph wires comprising the Boston & Maine's private communicating system are always available, and the first alarm of snow results in the immediate alertness of the 5,500 "first line" snow fighters.

MY TEST

Editor, Northfield News:

I am being asked continually what I think of the $3,000,000 drive which is now in progress for the benefit of the Northfield schools—in other words, it amounts to the following question, "Do I believe in D. L. Moody and his work?" I certainly do. For the past 30 years I have been singing with the greatest of enthusiasm "Loyal sons of Hermon may we ever be." Now the vital test of my loyalty has arrived. Should I fail to respond, then I could no longer consider myself a loyal son of Hermon. It is said that some one once asked D. L. Moody who would take care of the schools after he was gone. Mr. Moody's answer was quick and decisive. He said: "The boys and girls who go out from these schools will take care of them." When he made that statement, I am under the impression that he included me, therefore I must live up to his expectation of me.

Just recently I read a line which said, "You never are interested in anything until you have deliberately put interest into it."

The Holiday Season

By WINTON V. KENFIELD
In the Pathfinder

THE world without is fast asleep;
The moon alone its vigil keeps.
O'er hill and dale of snowy white
It faintly casts its silvery light.

A distant sleigh-bell's tinkling note
From some white hillside far remote
Comes floating o'er the peaceful dell
As if to bid that all is well.

The world within a contrast lends
As mirth and gaiety extends
To carefree hearts both young and old
As they themselves in joy enroll.

Christmas trees in gay display
Cast their colorful array
Of tinted hues, and thus comprise
The cynosure of babies' eyes.

Music, dancing, fill the room;
Young folks have no time for gloom
Gliding gracefully along,
Filled with laughter, cheer and song.

Now and then, quite unaware,
Amid the fun, a youthful pair
Will pause beneath the mistletoe
Hung about where lights are low.

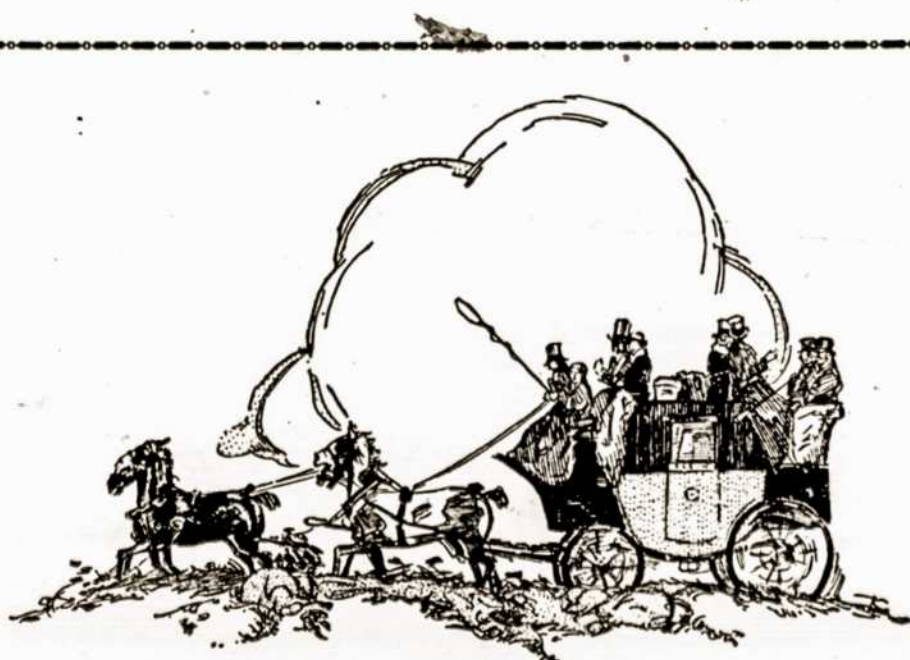

Babies—young folks—old folks—all
Heed the season's cheerful call—
Heed that adage once again,
"Peace on earth, good will toward men."

Thoughts for Christmas

By Edward L. Lemon
In Boston Globe

LOOK not through the glass darkly,
If nerves are taut,
And you are wrought,
Seek ever for the light.
The word unkind disdain,
To others giving pain.
Beauty around you everywhere,
Never the view dispel,
On moody thoughts to dwell.
And do not troubles grow—
Breathing joy and hope,
One will never move.
Make life a picture fine,
Forget unpleasant things,
Full measure gladness brings.
Be responsive to the touch
Of friendship, love,
Place faith in God above.
Though hazards cloak the way,
Push on in thankfulness
To gain full happiness.

DOES YOUR WATCH BRING BACK GAY TALLYHOS FROM DREAM ROADS FAR AWAY?

A watch may never lose a second yet be many years slow

The bond between a man and such a watch is a secret tie, unknown to a critical and unsympathetic world. So the watch, no matter how highly it may be privily prized, is often publicly condemned as old-fashioned and out-of-style . . . A man, in fact, is judged by the watch he carries, and if that watch be a modern Elgin, the appraisal is ever flattering. For the Elgin is true alike to the time-minute and the style-minute . . . accurate and dependable, unbelievably thin, handsomely encased, a criterion of good taste.

THE MAN'S STRAP WATCH, in a 14-karat white or green tone gold-filled case, 7-jewel movement, is priced at . . . $15

THE WOMAN'S WRIST WATCH, in a case of 18-karat solid white gold, is priced at . . . $25
We will show these and other Elgins to you gladly. No other watch is offered in so generous an assortment of styles nor at a price range so liberal—$20 to $1,750. (Prices slightly higher in Canada.)

The President and Prohibition

The cause of prohibition has been greatly strengthened and advanced by the position of President Hoover. He is today the outstanding leader of the dry forces. He is dry in principle, in practice and in purpose. It is more and more noticeable that governmental appointments are not given by him to drinking men, and in Washington, D. C., on the authority of David A. Lawrence, one of the best informed and most trustworthy of newspaper men, many wets who voted for him are now dry out of loyalty to him. Mr. Hoover's emphasis on law enforcement in his inaugural address was not merely an eloquent outburst. It was a serious expression of his inmost belief and a record of his position that is permanent and dependable. Repeatedly he has made known what he stands for and what the country may expect from him. He has said, "Our whole system of self government will crumble either if officials elect what laws they enforce or citizens elect what laws they support. The worst evil of disregard for some law is that it destroys respect for all law. For our citizens to patronize the violation of a particular law on the ground that they are opposed to it is destructive of the very basis of all that protection of life, of homes and property which they rightly claim under other laws. . . . A large responsibility rests directly upon our citizens. There would be little traffic in illegal liquor if only criminals patronized it. We must awake to the fact that this patronage from large numbers of law abiding citizens is supplying the rewards and stimulating crime. . . . No greater national service can be given by men and women of good will—who, I know, are not unmindful of the responsibilities of citizenship—than that they should, by their example, assist in stamping out crime and outlawry by refusing participation in and condemning all transactions with illegal liquor." Words like these, coming from our highest executive whose personality and character have stood the test of years, may well be taken by every citizen in all seriousness.

President Hoover means what he says. Let every citizen support him, not only in inward opinion but also by outward action. The sobriety of the next generation will thus be assured, and if that is accomplished the turmoil, the discouragements and the conflicts of the present day are well worth while.

Pictures and cards were very much in evidence and added to the entertainment. The roll call was responded to by 16 members. The hostess served refreshments.

Of Interest to Women

To keep your windows shining after they have been washed well, wring a soft chamolis skin as dry as possible out of warm water and rub well over the glass. No other polishing is needed and the windows will be clear and shining. Try it—I know you will be delighted with the result. To prevent hardwood floors from being marked, cut pieces of thick felt the exact size of the tips of the chairs and fasten on with good glue. The felt is far less expensive than rubber tips and will wear much longer. Rocking chairs may have a long strip glued on each rocker. To clean the brass handles on bureaus and other furniture, unscrew them, take them off, put them in hot soap suds and let remain for several hours; then scrub with a brush, rinse, and dry thoroughly. Polish with coal oil and whiting and they will shine like new. There is no better polish for brass articles and silver than a cloth dipped in coal oil and then in whiting. The oil and ashes make a good polish for steel, zinc and tinware.

In washing cupboards, sinks, pots and pans, and, in fact, all kitchen utensils, they should be systematically cleaned with a solution of borax, soap and water to render them sweet and wholesome. The use of borax in this way tends to destroy all disease germs and microbes which thrive in soap suds and grease.

If you find any iron rust stains on white goods, place the spot that has been rusted over a plate and cover it with hot stewed rhubarb (fresh or canned); then set the plate in the sun and let the rhubarb remain on until the spot has disappeared. Ink stains on the fingers can be quickly removed by wetting and rubbing them with the head of a common match, then washing in warm suds.

If the ears have been left sensitive from the flu, put into them, with a medicine dropper, a few drops of a solution made with one cup warm water and one teaspoonful of baric acid.

You may think the little goldfish that floats around in a glass bowl is a rare specimen. Maybe he used to be, but that day is no more. A government report issued in Washington shows that 21,500,000 goldfish, worth $1,000,000, were raised and sold as part of the nation's fish farming industry last year.

"You Must Forgive Her,"

Good Christmas Advice

THERE was such a crowd pushing into the toy department that I was almost crushed trying to get out. As I was working my way toward the elevator a large woman among the crowd just coming from it put out a strong arm and pushed me aside as though I were a troublesome child. I suppressed some very indignant words, and felt rather proud of myself for the feat, but my face must have been less controlled than my tongue, for a sweet-faced old lady back of the rude woman looked into my eyes and said, "Oh, you must forgive her, my dear—it's Christmas, you know!"

I smiled back, and nodded, all my irritation gone, and as I went on about my shopping, I kept saying to myself, "Oh, you must forgive her—it's Christmas, you know!"

I didn't know the sweet old lady's name, and I have never, to my knowledge, seen her again, but in all the years since this happened, there has never been a holiday season when I have not heard in my heart, at some temperamental crisis, that soft voice, in gentle admonition: "Oh, you must forgive her, my dear—it's Christmas, you know!"—Myrtle Koon Cherryman. "I've Been Reading"
By WILDER BUELL

THE TWILIGHT OF CHRISTIANITY, by Harry Elmer Barnes, the Vanguard Press, pages 463, price $3.00.

The purpose and content of this book can best be expressed in the author's own words. "It is the thesis of the writer that the orthodox religious complex is, in its multifarious ramifications, the most active and pervasive menace to civilization which confronts mankind today, compared with which war and poverty are unimportant incidental details." So that is that!

The book then goes on to make out a case. It is a long book and scholarly. And it has a most complete bibliography of modern writings on religion, philosophy and kindred subjects, chosen, of course, with a view to buttressing the contents of this book and not as a survey of all books published on these subjects in recent years. But, for anyone who wishes to brush up on the Left side of Modernism, this is an excellent list of possible reading.

Mr. Barnes then goes on to lay the foundations for his argument by summarizing the latest discoveries in astronomy, physics and chemistry. Less fully he indicates some of the newer contributions to psychology and the social sciences, such as the real meaning of the "sense of sin" and conversion by revival methods. He also deals at some length with the origin of Christianity and the Bible, summarizing, in effect, the course in Biblical literature as taught at Smith College, where Prof. Barnes is professor of history, and at other universities. None of this material is new or original. The merit of the book lies in the enormous amount of material that has been compressed into one readable book and the pungency of some of the author's comments thereon.

Granting the author's own premises, the book has one important weakness. It is Mr. Barnes' obvious sympathy with Socialism. To anyone who has made a serious study of that political-economic scheme for the salvation of the world, there can be no merit in fighting older emotional and non-rational cults only to fall into Socialism, which is a plan based on the theory that all men are actually and entirely equal, in every way. And Socialists are just as dogmatic, unreasoning and impervious to the findings of science as the most convinced Fundamentalists. Indeed, Lothrop Stoddard, in his book, "The Revolt Against Civilization," once made the statement that Orthodoxy is dying of its own accord, and that, consequently, the great fight of the future will be between Socialism and Science, between Bolshevism and Biology. It is a pity that Mr. Barnes does not see this.

But Mr. Barnes has another prediction that will win more sympathy. He states that after thinking out this book, in his search for the fundamentals of some of the smaller religious groups, he ran across the Unitarians, especially Dr. Dietrich and the Humanists. And he, Mr. Barnes, believes that from the pulpit of the Unitarian church alone there is being preached a religion that is in accord with modern scholarship and modern science. He feels that it is a sad comment on our vaunted 20th century civilization that there are, in this country, only 62,000 Unitarians. Quite so!

But to get the full effect of this book it is necessary to read it. Any summary is unjust to the author. It is interesting, however, to note in passing what he has to say on Pacifism, for Mr. Barnes first came into prominence after the publication of a book on the origins of the war. He says, "The writer of these lines is well known to be a person of pacifist leanings who earnestly deplores our present excessive expenditures for modern armaments, but it is certainly more justifiable to expend large sums of money to protect ourselves against potential earthly enemies than to appropriate infinitely greater amounts to protect ourselves from wholly imaginary enemies in the postulated spirit world. We may be in no great danger from Japan or Great Britain, but they certainly menace us far more than the devil."

Altogether, what is usually known as a "stimulating" book.

"Why Not Get It Yourself?"
I'll prod him up a bit; remind him about Christmas and—
"What's the matter with getting it yourself?" broke in Peggy. But Walter was not given the chance to reply, as a customer came in just then and Peggy turned away to wait on her.

"That boy, Walter Landrum, would make a wonderful fellow," said Peggy to one of the clerks when her customer had gone, "if he were to be thrown on his own resources for a while."

On Christmas eve Peggy had an early morning telephone call from Walter. "I'm trying to catch you before you leave for work, Peggy. Will you lunch with me today at the Phoenix?"

"I'll be delighted, Walter, if you manage it between twelve and one."

"Suits me. I'll be by for you at twelve sharp."
Flurries of snow were falling, promising a white Christmas, as Peggy and Walter pushed their way through the busy throng and found a table in a secluded nook of the big dining room. As soon as the order was given Walter began:

"I brought you here, Peggy, to tell you something of great importance."

"What?" exclaimed the astonished girl.

"I went out and got me a job. I'm working. And I am getting a thrill out of being some account. I've taken my last dollar from Dad for clothes and fun. I've bargained for a new tux and I'm going to pay every last cent of it myself."

Peggy laid her hand gently on his. "Walter, you're a trump! I glory in your decision and hope you'll stick to it. I know you will never be sorry of it."

"So do I, Peg, and I have you to thank for it. Gee, won't that be a grand dance we are going to, arrayed in our self-earned finery?" And they smiled their genuine appreciation of each other.

When college again convened Walter stuck to his job at odd hours and Saturday afternoons. He was working for the love and respect of a certain co-ed who gave him the necessary encouragement to continue.

When Her Yuletide Ends
The so-called Yuletide doesn't really end for Dora until five days later, and she has had a chance to get around and price the gifts received.

Mount Hermon

Mr. and Mrs. Lyon L. Norton spent last week-end at the home of their son, Dr. Hermon Norton, Newton Center, returning Monday night.

The second of the inter-society Alumni cup debates this season resulted last Saturday night in a victory for the Pierian Literary Society over the Philomathean Literary Society. The Pierians were upholding the affirmative side of the question—Resolved: Competition is of more value than co-operation. Walter H. Eastman and Willis T. Hayes for the Pierians; E. P. Small and James L. Schmitt for the Philomatheans. Willis T. Hayes won the first prize and James L. Schmitt the second.

A double quartet from the Glee Club, together with I. J. Lawrence, director of music, and Leon H. Dunnell, accompanist, went to Rockville, Conn., to give a concert Saturday evening and to assist at the church services on Sunday. J. Albert Fairfield, violinist, and Adam E. Wesloski, xylophonist, were also in the party. The arrangements for the trip were made through the interest of Francis D. Green, a graduate of Mount Hermon.

Mrs. Ruth Beane of Cambridge spent several days on the campus over last week-end. She was the guest of Mrs. H. F. Outler at Ford cottage.

Two employees at the school have been fortunate in their hunting trips this fall. Daniel Van Valkenburg shot a deer last Saturday, and Charles Raymond of Bernardston killed a doe weighing about 200 pounds Saturday.

South Vernon

R. W. Russell, who has been ill, is improving.

The Mission Study Class met at the Vernon Home Wednesday at 3 p. m., Mrs. Cates, leader.

Rev. George E. Tyler, who has been attending the board meeting in Boston, returned home Tuesday night.

Prof. A. H. Evans spoke in the Methodist church in Greenfield Friday evening. His subject was "The Bad Boy."

The Week Day Church school will hold its last meeting before Christmas vacation at the South schoolhouse today (Friday) at 3:30 p. m. Friends have received word that Mrs. Wallace, who has been living at the Vernon Home for a long time, and is now in the Melrose hospital, is very sick.

Mrs. E. W. Scherlin entertained her two sons and their families, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Scherlin and family and Mr. and Mrs. J. Algot Scherlin and family, at a coon supper at her home.

A sale of articles and a social, followed by refreshments, will be held at the Vernon home today (Friday) at 2 p. m. The articles will make good Christmas gifts. All are invited to come and have a good time.

Church services next Sunday will be held at the usual time. Sermon by the pastor, Rev. George E. Tyler, at 10:45; church school at 12:05; evening service at 7; mid-week prayer meeting at the Vernon Home at 7:30 Thursday.

Will all those people in Vernon and South Vernon who gave Mrs. Edna Edson, zanol orders please be patient. Owing to a bad accident, these goods cannot be delivered as early as planned. She will try to deliver them between Dec. 15 and 20.

To William Shattuck and Mrs. Gladys (French) Shattuck a son was born Friday, Dec. 6, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Augustus Bouldrey, in East Bridgewater, grandson to Mrs. William Shattuck, Sr., and Aiden French of West Northfield.

Ransom Akeley was taken to the Melrose hospital in West Brattleboro, Vt., Tuesday for X-Ray examination and treatment. He has been in failing health since last September, recently becoming much worse. He passed his 81st birthday last Saturday.

SEASONED INVESTMENTS

Inter State Mortgages are really seasoned. When stocks have depreciated often as much as 75% of their quoted value, our Guaranteed Mortgages have not changed a particle. Why not be one of the many conservative investors who have stopped losses for all time by concentrating on Guaranteed Investments.
